This year, we wanted to raise a glass to people, past and present, who have influenced not just us, but the whole bar industry. From creative thinkers to creative drinkers, we are toasting to some of the brightest stars to have graced our atmosphere.

Welcome to the Legends menu.

AISHA TYLER
This American actress, director, and comedian is no stranger to the bartender community. Having had stints behind the bar herself, she focuses on the art of mixing great drinks at home. Having spent much of her time traveling through many major cities, she knows just where to find a good drink. Now, whose round is it anyway?

ERNST HEMINGWAY
This American Library Association icon is known for his straightforward approach and macho, hard-drinking persona. Few could take to the pen the way Ernest did, and through his writing we are taught to “know what you like and love what you know.” We live a good cocktail and so did he.

DITA VON TEESE
Teese might be the character name of Heather Sweet, but she is known by name and by nature. This “Queen of Burlesque” is known all over the world for her famous, vintage strip-tease, but she also has her perfectly manicured fingers in many pies. She has a love for agave so we kept it sleek and classic, just like the woman of the hour. In a signature coupe, no less, because if it’s good enough to bathe in...

SNOOP DOGG
Taking a nod out of the original Dogfather’s book, we’re staying laid back, but no gin and juice here. Staying local to Colin Beardslee Jr., California loves its vodka. We are picturing sunshine, crazy nights and some great tunes by the waterfront. Now, drop it like it’s hot.

IAN FLEMING
“I would rather die of drink than of thirst.” A bold statement from his character James Bond, written by the unquaffable Ian Fleming, who was not only a British writer, journalist and naval intelligence officer - he kept a keen eye on how to make a great drink and told the world just how to do it. Nobody knew the importance of a well-balanced drink better than Ian, and he was not shy of letting it be known either. Shaken, not stirred was for the screen, not the bar. While it was vodka for Bond, it was whisky for Fleming. Chin, chin!

CARMEN MIRANDA
The Brazilian bombshell painted the world in colour; like before with her tufted hat, patterned outfit, and unapologetic curve for the Latin-Tango music scene. Between the 30s and 50s, she took the world by storm and became the highest paid actress in America, a true triple threat that matches the triple we have created in her honour. Latin novice for punch, green chilli for attitude, and almond ingred’s to round the edges.

ELIZABETH, QUEEN MOTHER
Now who’s more in the know more than the Queen herself? How about the mother of the very same? This powerful matriarch is known for her nightly Dry Martinis, but we remember her as the last Empress of India where we warmed the traditional British dry gin drink with pineapple and macadamia. Then we added a helping of our home-developed Latin mix, and it’s a Queen to be proud of!

BENDER B. RODRIGUEZ
An homage to how we want the future to unfold. Bender the bramble robot from Futurama is a modern-day classic character. We couldn’t resist raising a toast to Fagin’s robots on a beer. As Bender does, the future doesn’t seem so bad after all. If it’s got to be rocket fuel, it’s got to be a smoky scotch. Cold. Infused with a bit of tropical toasted coconut, banana, and lime to avoid that Bender was built in Tyana, so he is one of us after all. Now stick that in your pipe and smoke it!

DICK & BEA BRADSELL
What would a bar be without hospitality? That’s about the same as asking what would the bar be without the Bradsell’s. Dick, Dick, and Dick’s, as he was never called. Showed us how bars can create beautiful and classic cocktails without being a dick about it. Fun and delicious came as a pack when in the 90s and 80s he brought us drinks like the Espresso Martini, Bramble, Truce, and plenty more. Not too long ago we saw Dick at this modern classic here, but he left us with a creative masterpiece in his daughter Bea, and she has spent the last 15 years in London showcasing that hospitality is why we are here after all.

JOSEPHINE BAKER
Josephine Baker was a pioneer not only as the first woman of colour to star in a motion picture, but also as an intelligence officer in World War II and being instrumental in the civil rights movement in the 50s. She inspired an entire generation to stand up for what they believed in, to question authority and to never be afraid to say their personalities. Our drink, of course, had to include a nod to her famous banana dance - from the 20s with which she rose to fame.
ALESSANDRO PALAZZI, PETER DORELLI & SALVATORE CALABRESE

When in Rome, they say! Well, in the cobbled streets of Soho, we are to give homage to the activists who came before us. The Irish past, the site, and the playground for the aesthetic movement is why one can live more freely than before. His love for human beauty, whatever shape it came in, was remarkable, and where would we be without culture, comedy, and laughter? Through his witty plays, he exposed hypocrisy and famously said: “Be yourself; everyone else is taken.” Now that we can drink to!

OSCAR WILDE

Art for art’s sake! In the colourful streets of Soho, we must give homage to the activists who came before us. This Irish past, the site, and the playground for the aesthetic movement is why one can live more freely than before. His love for human beauty, whatever shape it came in, was remarkable, and where would we be without culture, comedy, and laughter? Through his witty plays, he exposed hypocrisy and famously said: “Be yourself; everyone else is taken.” Now that we can drink to!

LEMMY KILMISTER

Motorhead frontman Lemmy Kilmister was the embodiment of rock and roll. His always being like the pot, the hard rock guru, took the world by storm. With a plan filled with whiskey and not very much Coke, he took the drunks home and took each day as it last. With this in mind, we thought a whiskey julep in a silver chalice would suit. Nothing unnecessary, just delicious whiskey—just the way Lemmy would have liked it.

VINCENT VAN GOGH

In his short life, Vincent Van Gogh expressed his fascination in the beauty found in the overexposed and unrefined. In painting his “Sunflowers” series, he expressed his admiration for the fact that they withered at different speeds and thus showed a sense of community. We reckon that, in a statement, we can all get behind, as we all are a pretty damn great masterpiece you might say!

SIR IAN MCKELLEN

From Hamlet to Gandalf, this much-honored Bridgetown actor has been with us across the stages and screens since the 80s, and nobody can deny the impact his talent has left with us. Never not chilling always with a glass in the eye and if you’re lucky, you might even find him pouring a pint at one of our favourite watering holes in London, the Grapes. We know that few things in life are as great as a simple glass of wine and a bit of human interaction. So, pull up a pew.

ABSOLUTELY FABULOUS

Oh, we could only live in the glorious world of Patsy and Edina. We have all laughed at these characters, secretly wishing we had the confidence to live out our wildest fantasies like they do. Capturing the essence of what they think is “couture, dining,” we wanted to give you a little more than just a Stil-Ball. Of course, our nod to this voodoo-dust gives them that refinement they deserve.

FRANK SINATRA

“I need a girl for who don’t drink. When they wake up in the morning, that’s as good as they’re going to feel all day.”

Many would argue, Ol’ Blue Eyes was one of the greatest musical artists of all time, but it was his way about Frank was his way. The Rat Pack, Unapologetic, rebel, rock, and roll, they were known as much for their reckless abandon and infamous parties as they were for their singing. So, let’s fly to the moon for this fine talents’ expression with a sophisticated but bold Old Fashioned.

“You’re not drunk if you can lie on this floor without holding on.”

NIGELLA LAWSON

“I don’t believe you can ever cook if you don’t love eating.” Who can deny that whatever dish Nigella creates in her gorgeous kitchen, it will be delicious and love-makingly good? We tried to do just the same with whatever tape we were to create in her honor, and the Pimm’s Cup is just that. Silly, glorious, creamy, and potent, take a sip and feel like Nigella for a moment.

HARUKI MURAKAMI

“Whiskey, like a beautiful woman, demands appreciation. You gave first, then it’s time to drink.”

Haruki Murakami is world-renowned as a novelist of magical realism fiction. He has spent his life exploring the inner core of human identity and this Japanese writer shows us what love is and how our worlds can take. So let’s deep dive into this tape on a classic Moscow Mule—whiskey, sage, and umeshu. Eat meets west, just like his writing.
